The EU Clean Energy Package, designed to sustain the implementation of the Energy Union and the climate and energy framework for 2030, sets high-aimed targets on energy efficiency and renewable energy.

Also, recently, the European Commission (EC) announced that fifteen energy topics under the 2018-2020 Horizon 2020 Work Programme are open for application as of 3 September 2019. They make available EU funding of EUR 297 million in total.

Nine of the topics relate to renewable energy solutions (RES), while the six others cover smart and clean energy for consumers, smart citizen-centred energy system, smart cities and communities, and smart airports (EC-ES-SCC). The projects will be selected for funding in a singlestage evaluation. The deadline to submit a proposal is 11 December 2019 for the RES call and 29 January 2020 for EC-ES-SCC call.

Today, natural gas - considered an ideal partner for renewable energy generation in a future sustainable energy mix - provides one quarter of the EU's energy demand. According to most of forecasts, gas will continue to play a key role alongside renewables in helping to meet future energy requirements. In this context, technology seems to be the right ally in fighting climate change and not only.

The role of natural gas and renewables in a fast-evolving energy market towards achieving the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals represents the main theme for the Power & Energy Tech Exhibition and Conference Vision 2030 - PETEC 2019.

Power & Energy Tech Exhibition and Conference Vision 2030 takes a leadership role with the introduction of a dedicated conference and exhibition that covers a range of new technologies, including Artificial Intelligence, Machine Learning, IoT, Big Data Analytics, Edge Computing, Blockchain across the energy sector.

Energy efficiency is also a focus area for this event. Energy efficiency is changing, with new digital technologies enabling greater control, optimisation and analytics. Harnessing digital technologies to enhance energy efficiency will require new policies and business models.

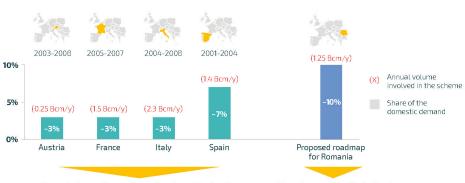

Energy efficiency is strong driver to achieve the 2020 and 2030 climate targets and also a major building block for the EC's proposal for 'A European strategic long-term vision for a prosperous, modern, competitive and climate-neutral economy' tabled in November 2018.

In this context, it is important that the 2020 targets for energy efficiency are met with measures that can continue to deliver energy savings in the next decade.

Examples of gas release schemes introduced in Europe

Volumes involved and their share¹ compared to national gas demand

- Several volume release schemes have been introduced in the EU gas markets during the 2000-2010s
- The volumes involved usually cover a small share of the domestic gas demand (3%-7%)

 The volume proposed in the Roadmap covers a higher share of the Romanian gas demand compared to most of the programs previously introduced in Europe

Marking the Way Towards a Functional Gas Market in Romania

Currently, hydrocarbons account for over 68% of Romania's primary energy sources, the share of natural gas in electricity generation being over 17%, and this figure is forecast also for the 2030 horizon, natural gas being an essential component of a balanced energy mix.

In the international context characterized by the increase in demand and the commitment to reduce carbon emissions, Romania experiences a natural decline of production and lack of investments. Most productive fields are mature fields with production in decline. To continue operating these fields, large investments are needed.

According to experts, we must focus now on maintaining and even increasing gas supply in the country from domestic production - boosting investment through an adequate legislative framework, particularly in view of the recent public call for tenders published by the National Agency for Mineral Resources (NAMR). Through the long-awaited Round XI for exploration, favourable prerequisites were created to attract the investments needed by Romania. Therefore, difficulties faced by titleholders of petroleum agreements should be solved by improving the current legislation.

The study conducted by Emerton, having as topic 'Recommendations for a competitive, attractive and affordable Romanian gas market', includes several actions aiming at boosting the liquidity of the wholesale market and improving the security of supply: cancellation of the price cap as soon as possible; adaptation of the current centralized market obligations (CMO); enhancing the inter-connections with the EU market in both senses.

Major topics in focus

- Defining Romania's place on the European energy market
- Efficient monetization of Romania's energy resources
- Renewable energy policies and markets in the European Union
- Clean Energy Package challenges and opportunities
- The disruptive 3D's impact on the energy transition to a low carbon economy
- Smart solutions to maximize efficiency, reduce costs and CO2 emissions
- Regulatory framework to stimulate innovation and investment
- Financing energy projects

Advancing the Energy Transition

Global spending on energy, as proportion of economic output, is set to slow sharply because the world's energy demand will decline from 2035 onwards according to DNV GL's Energy Transition Outlook 2018.

The decarbonization of the energy mix will be reflected in investment trends with money spent on renewables set to triple by 2050. Conversely, fossil fuel spending will drop by around a third. Overall, the rate of energy expenditure will slow to such a degree that by midcentury, as a percentage of GDP, the world will be spending 44% less than today.

- Electrification and its inherent efficiency will contribute to humanity's energy demand declining from the mid-2030s onwards
- Global expenditure on energy, as a percentage of GDP, will fall 44% by 2050.
- Energy mix is rapidly decarbonizing; coal has peaked, oil will peak in 2023 and natural gas will become largest single source from 2026. Renewables and fossil fuels will equally share supply by mid-century.

The rapid transition experts forecast will not be fast enough to meet the sub-2°C climate goal. A strong combination of several measures is the only way for the world to meet the ambitions of the Paris Agreement, they warn.
