GOING CARBON NEUTRAL

Responsible Technology Investments

Energy Industry Review organizes the 4th edition of the Energy Tech Day - Going Carbon Neutral: Responsible Technology Investments on June 7-8th, 2023 at JW Marriott Bucharest Grand Hotel.

This year brings some energy challenges that will make headlines all over the world. Experts identify major risks and opportunities facing the energy sector in 2023. Is Romania prepared to deal with these? Find out the answer during the Energy Tech Day 2023.

With a dedicated and strong program, this high-level conference offers a great platform for inspiring presentations, sharing best practices and alternative perspectives.

Energy Tech Day 2023 will bring together international experts, national government authorities, clean energy leaders, investors, business owners, technology developers across the entire energy value chain to explore new opportunities and challenges that will define the new era of energy transition.

High-level Experts Gathering

Top national and international energy business leaders will address commercial, regulatory, geopolitical, and technical challenges impacting the future of the energy industry.

Other important topics which will be approached are: mechanisms to promote a safe and fair energy transition, especially in the current situation; the European Green Deal challenges and opportunities; state-of-the-art technologies impacting each part of the value-added energy chain: sources, conversion, distribution, storage, usage; smart solutions to maximize efficiency, reduce costs and CO2 emissions; regulatory framework to stimulate innovation and investment; environmentally responsible energy uses; financing the industry.
